

Durnholzer See - Lago di Valdurna

Description

The Lago di Valdurna is an alpine lake situated at the furthest point of the Valdurna valley at 1540 metres above sea level in the Sarentine Alps. The shores of the lake are particularly interesting for the differences in the types of terrain, varying from woodland to marshy ground. The lake is roughly triangular and is 900 metres long and 350 wide. It is fed by a small stream and a larger stream running off the mountains, as well as a few springs in the lake bed. The water leaves the lake in the Valdurna stream and runs into the Talvera. A cycle route, only open to residents, winds its way along the north shore, whereas a footpath runs along the south shore.
